

TUTORING

The “Code of Ethics for the Catholic School Teacher” (cf. policy #4105) states that Catholic school educators:

“refuse remuneration for tutoring students assigned to (their) classes and reject any other use of (their) students for personal financial gain.”

Accordingly, no elementary or secondary teacher may accept remuneration for tutorial services rendered to students who are assigned to their respective classes during the academic year except in the case of a home-bound student. Tutoring service in this circumstance is remunerated by the public school district in which the student resides.

All other forms of tutoring requested by the parents or recommended by a teacher shall be coordinated with the knowledge of the Principal and shall provide for a listing of teachers from whom the parents might select.

Mandatory summer instruction because of a failure in a subject area shall be conducted under the auspices of a public or an established Catholic school program. In certain circumstances, parents may be given the option of procuring a certified teacher to be approved by the Principal for satisfying credit/promotion requirements.
